Canine breeding program looks forward to better digs

Puppy love. Winnipeg police K-9 unit breaks ground on new home

DAVE BAXTER
winipeg@metronews.ca

The Winnipeg Police Service and Mayor Sam Katz broke ground Friday on a brand new state-of-the-art home for the Winnipeg Police Service K-9 unit and nationally recognized breeding program.

The 4,500-square-foot facility will be located at 77 Durand Rd., adjacent to the East District Police Station, and will house the K-9 unit's 23 canines.

The facility will feature 11 air-conditioned kennels with attached dog runs and special kennels for puppies with an indoor puppy run.

"These dogs, with the support of their trainers, very much serve and protect our community," said Katz. "They are experts (on) chasing and holding suspects, searching buildings, locating evidence, finding missing persons and detecting narcotics and explosives.

"The K-9 unit with its 23 dogs and 12 police officers is responsible for an average of 350 arrests a year."

Winnipeg police Chief Keith McCaskill admitted there have been delays with the project, which was approved by Winnipeg city council back in 2010, but also said the project still has a guaranteed price of $1.25 million and will be a first-class facility when it is completed.

"We would have liked to have it sooner, but at this stage we're going to have the facility the city needs and the police service needs," said McCaskill.

The project is expected to be completed by the winter of 2013.

Province unveils Manitoba's first electric bus

Premier Greg Selinger speaks at the unveiling of the first Manitoba-made electric bus. DAVE BAXTER/FOR METRO

The very first Manitoba-made electric transit bus was unveiled Friday morning at the legislative building.

The vehicle, which will run on electric power rather than diesel fuel, was built by New Flyer, after collaborating with Mitsubishi Heavy Industries, Manitoba Hydro and Red River College.

"What we are doing today is forging the future of public transportation right here in Manitoba," said Premier Greg Selinger. "An electric bus offers a much smaller carbon footprint and really no emissions.

"With more and more people living in urban areas, public transportation will be a key to a high-quality urban lifestyle."

The bus will be used as a shuttle for Manitoba Hydro sometime in 2013 and from there New Flyer hopes to sell the electric bus to cities throughout North America.

Chris Stoddart, the vice-president of engineering for New Flyer, said the bus will need another year of testing before it can be put on the street, but when it is ready they will start looking to sell the bus.

"We'll be negotiating with our entire customer base," said Stoddart. "The intent is commercialization."

Manhunt continues after Magnotta spotted in France

Body-parts case.

French newspaper reports police were able to trace suspect's itinerary through cellphone activity

The suspect in the gruesome killing and dismemberment of a Chinese student in Montreal may have been spotted in France over the weekend but police aren't ruling out the possibility he could still be on the move.

Montreal police confirmed Sunday that Luka Rocco Magnotta was in the European country as recently as Friday.

"The man was seen in France, that's what French authorities told us," police spokesman Ian Lafreniere told reporters. Lafreniere cautioned that Magnotta may no longer be in France, and wouldn't rule out the possibility he had since returned to Canada or headed elsewhere in Europe.

"He's someone who has been known to travel, so we're not taking any chances and we want to keep an open mind," Lafreniere said. "We've received more than 360 tips — it's huge, people really want to help."

Murder victim Jun Lin
FACEBOOK

Magnotta, 29, is wanted in the slaying of Jun Lin, 33, who was a student at Montreal's Concordia University. Lin's torso was found in a suitcase that had been left out for garbage collection outside Magnotta's Montreal apartment last week. Other severed body parts, including a hand and a foot, were mailed to the offices of political parties in Ottawa.

French media reported Sunday that personal belongings of the porn actor were found in a hotel in suburban Paris. The reports said police discovered pornographic magazines as well as air-sickness bags from the flight he took to Paris from Montreal.

Police believe Magnotta fled to France on May 26.

Toronto mall shooting a targeted act: Police

Dozens of people came out for a vigil that was held Sunday night outside of the Toronto Eaton Centre. RICHARD LAUTENS/TORSTAR NEWS SERVICE

Aftermath

- Three other people suffered less serious gunshot wounds and were released from hospital.
- A 28-year-old pregnant woman who was trampled as people rushed the exits was recovering in hospital.

- A makeshift memorial was set up outside the mall Sunday afternoon, with several people stopping to leave messages of grief and sympathy.

The investigation into a deadly shooting rampage that set off a mass panic at the Toronto Eaton Centre focused Sunday on the shooter behind the brazen attack, as police and local authorities reassured the public that Toronto remains a safe city.

Police confirmed that Saturday's shooting at one of Canada's busiest shopping malls — which killed one and injured seven others — was a targeted act.

Investigators said the man who was killed, identified as Ahmed Hassan, 24, of Toronto, had known gang ties. At least one of the victims may also have gang connections, police said, but they had yet to determine if the shooting was gang-related.

"It may be that both of them have gang affiliations, or it may be just the one of them, but we do believe that our deceased in this case may have had some gang affiliation," said Det. Sgt. Brian Borg.

Police sounded confident they know the identity of the gunman, but did not elaborate, saying they did not want to influence first-hand accounts still pouring in a day after the attack.

Investigators were reviewing security video in their hunt for the shooter and interviewing witnesses who were among the hundreds of people in the downtown shopping mall when the gunfire erupted, causing panicked shoppers to charge toward the exit in a wild pandemonium.

Seven people suffered either gunshot wounds or injuries in the stampede. The most seriously injured was a 23-year-old man who suffered multiple gunshot wounds to his neck and chest. He remained in hospital in critical condition.

A 13-year-old boy who was visiting Toronto with his family suffered a gunshot wound to his head and remained in critical condition Sunday, though police said his injuries were no longer considered life-threatening.

"One idiot with a gun on a Saturday afternoon in downtown Toronto does not speak to the state of the city ... please do not gauge the city on what we saw yesterday," Acting Deputy Chief Jeff McGuire told a news conference on Sunday. THE CANADIAN PRESS

Military. Tories redraw defence spending plans

The Harper government is re-drafting its extensive, multi-billion shopping list of equipment for the Canadian military in an exercise many observers believe will set more sober expectations in a time of austerity.

The revision to the Canada First Defence Strategy is slated to be complete and ready for public consumption by fall, multiple sources say.

Although Defence Minister Peter MacKay describes the hallmark plan as a "living document," the reset comes at a time when the government has been hammered politically over the F-35 stealth fighter, an issue that tarnished the Tories' fiscally responsible image.

Defence sources say there is a baseline expectation that the promises made in the original 2008 document will be mostly kept, but whether the government will be buying in the quantities outlined at the height of the Afghan war is another matter.

Insiders believe that a re-drafted wishlist will take some of the bite out of opposition attacks and restore public confidence rattled by the F-35.

Queen celebrates Diamond Jubilee on the River Thames

London. More than one million spectators line the London river in the rain to salute Queen Elizabeth II's 60 years on the throne

The River Thames became a royal highway Sunday, as Queen Elizabeth II led a motley but majestic flotilla of more than 1,000 vessels in a water-borne pageant to mark her Diamond Jubilee.

In a colourful salute to the island nation's maritime past, an armada of skiffs and sailboats, rowboats and paddle steamers joined a flower-festooned royal barge down an 11-kilometre stretch of London's river.

With a crowd of rain-soaked spectators estimated by organizers at 1.25 million, the pageant was the largest public event in four days of celebrations of the monarch's 60 years on the throne. Monday, the queen will join thousands of revellers at an outdoor concert beside Buckingham Palace, headlined by pop royalty including Paul McCartney and Elton John. With any luck, the weather will improve. Sunday

Protesters

Not everyone in Britain was celebrating. Hundreds of anti-monarchists held a riverbank protest to oppose the wave of jubilee mania — though their chants were quickly countered by renditions of "God Save the Queen" from pageant-goers.

- "People are sick and tired of being told they must celebrate 60 years of one very privileged, very remote and very uninspiring head of state," said Graham Smith of the anti-monarchist group Republic. "The hereditary system is offensive to all the democratic values this country has fought for in the past."

was dismal, with rain scuttling plans for a ceremonial fly past, but that didn't stop Union Jack-waving spectators forming a red, white and blue wave along the pageant route.

The queen travelled down a river transformed during her reign, from the commercial and industrial heart of London to a tourist's playground.

More than 150 killed in Nigerian plane crash

People stand on a wing of a passenger plane that crashed in Lagos, Nigeria, Sunday. JON GAMBRELL/THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

A passenger plane carrying more than 150 people crashed in Nigeria's largest city on Sunday, killing all passengers and crew aboard, an emergency official said. Several charred corpses could be seen in the rubble of a building damaged by the crash, as firefighters searched for survivors and pulled a dead body from the wreckage.

Nigeria's Civil Aviation Authority Harold Demuren said that all aboard Sunday's Dana Air flight had died. He did not say how many were on the flight.

The Lagos state government said in a statement that 153 people were on the flight going to Lagos from Abuja.

Yushau Shuaib, spokesman for the National Emergency Management Agency, said there were likely more casualties on the ground, but the number was unknown. He said they were also still trying to get an official manifest on the flight. Sometimes flights in Nigeria issue paper tickets and don't record all passengers via computer.

The plane did not appear to have nose-dived into a building, but seemed to have landed on its belly. It first crashed through a furniture shop and then into residential buildings next to the workshop in this densely packed neighbourhood.

The nose of the plane was embedded into the three-storey apartment building, damaging only one part of the structure. Fire still smouldered everywhere as several thousand people looked on. A group of men stood atop the landing gear that was smoking and took pictures with their mobile phones. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Earlier tragedy

The presidency said in a statement the crash, "has sadly plunged the nation into further sorrow on a day when Nigerians were already grieving the loss of innocent lives."

- On Sunday, a suicide car bomber drove into a north Nigeria church's compound and detonated his explosives as worshippers left an early-morning service.

MacKay defends drone attacks

Canada defended the use of military drone attacks Sunday, saying technological advances have reduced the likelihood of civilian casualties.

Unmanned systems have proved their effectiveness in the decade-long war in Afgh-

"The use of drones has been referenced a number of times, and it all depends on the accuracy of the system," MacKay told an Asian security summit. "These eyes-on systems ... have increased our ability to decrease civilian casualties."

Interest rate hike? Experts think not

Economic outlook.

Friday's report on Canadian GDP showed a 1.9 per cent growth, well below the central bank's April call for a 2.5 per cent advance

Is the next move for Mark Carney to cut interest rates?

The question would have seemed unthinkable a few weeks ago given that the Bank of Canada governor's last pronouncement on the subject was to issue a wink and a nudge about coming hikes.

The signal-sending language — "some modest withdrawal of the present considerable monetary policy surplus may be appropriate" — contained in the April interest-setting statement sent markets into speculation hyper-drive that rates could be heading north as early as the summer. Tuesday's upcoming announcement was never in play and isn't in play now.

Economists are as unanimous as can be that Carney will keep the policy rate moored at one per cent a little while longer. But now the speculation has turned full circle about the nature of the next move, whenever it comes.

"The state of the world is increasingly making clear that a rate hike at this point would be premature," said Avery Shenfeld, chief economist with CIBC World Markets.

The revived crisis in Greece, the growing banking crisis in Spain, unresolved debt problems in Italy and Portugal, had already lengthened the odds on Carney moving this fall, and likely made him regret his April assessment that Europe's crisis had moved from "the acute to the chronic."

But if there was any doubt remaining, Friday's onslaught of weak and very weak data from Canada, the United States, China and Brazil, following a bad output number out of India Thursday, removed it.

Friday's report on Canadian gross domestic product did not show the economy

Economy

Carney's previous signal on interest rates was predicated on the assumption that Canada's growth rate would smoothly expand at about 2.5 per cent throughout 2012, enabling the economy to return to full capacity in the first half of 2013.

tanking in the first quarter, but at 1.9 per cent growth it was well below the central bank's April call for a 2.5 per cent advance. It now looks unlikely the bank's equally optimistic 2.5 per cent for the second quarter will come to fruition either.

And given the Canadian export sector's reliance on flush U.S. consumers, the miserly gain of 69,000 jobs reported south of the border for May was even a worse signal that the next few months will yield at best crawl-speed momentum. China and Brazil also reported soft economic data.

RIM had identity crisis at peak: Adviser

A brand strategy adviser hired by Research In Motion at the peak of the company's success says the BlackBerry maker was locked in an identity crisis that left it struggling to map out its future.

Matthew Kelly, managing director at Toronto-based firm Levels, said in a recent interview that RIM was preparing to wage a battle against Apple's iPhone device, an effort that seemed to be distracting the company from other market challenges.

"I didn't get the sense they were taking Android as (seriously) as they needed to," he said, who was previously chief marketing officer at Yum Brands Inc., owner of the Pizza Hut, Taco Bell and KFC chains.

RIM shares took a beating this week after the Waterloo, Ont.-based company announced Tuesday it hired two outside firms to advise on its troubled business and financial performance. The company also projected an operating loss in the current quarter and warned it will cut staff throughout the year.

Kelly said when he entered the picture, the company was already showing signs that it was losing its lustre. The BlackBerry name had been so powerful that devotees nicknamed their phones "Crackberrys" but by then, even some loyals were debating whether they'd switch devices.

RIM was trying to hold on to its reputation, which Kelly concedes was "stodgy, conservative and old-fashioned," all while making a second effort to take steam out of the iPhone, which had been gaining sales momentum in recent quarters. THE CANADIAN PRESS

PARCEL FOUR: 'FORK' IT OVER

COMPASS
Colin Fast
winipeg@metronews.ca

Here's how I spent my Saturday afternoon a couple of weekends ago: I watched a skateboarding demo, listened to some local indie bands, ate frozen yogurt while walking along the river, saw a bagpipe competition, shopped for a kite, laughed at the antics of a frisbee-catching canine busker, and panned for gold.

Amazingly, all of these activities took place in just one location: The Forks. Even more amazing, none of them interfered with the others. As I moved from one attraction to another, the people changed a bit, but there was a natural flow to the life of the site.

Put a fork in it

Beyond any short-term gain generated from selling Parcel Four, what eventually happens there is integral to the future development of our city.

I can recall rolling my eyes in the past at people who said The Forks was their favourite place in Winnipeg. It somehow seemed like too easy an answer because of its high profile. But over time — and especially since becoming a dad — I've developed a much deeper appreciation for what The Forks North Portage Partnership (FNPP) has created over the past 25 years.

And the fact they've been able to build a site that's equally enjoyed by skateboarding teenagers, families with young kids, patio-surfing young adults, senior-citizen-coffee-klatsches and bagpipe enthusiasts is a testament to a great planning process.

Which is why it seems obvious that FNPP should take the lead in determining what happens to the city-owned land at the southwest corner of William Stephenson Way and Waterfront Drive otherwise known as "Parcel Four," or "the place the city wanted to build a water park even though everyone else thought that was a really bad idea."

Parcel Four has been called one of the most valuable pieces of land in Winnipeg, and it's clear why. Not only is it steps away from The Forks and Portage and Main, it also sits across from two of our most prominent pieces of architecture: the Esplanade Riel and the rising Canadian Museum for Human Rights.

Beyond any short-term gain generated from selling Parcel Four, what eventually happens there is integral to the future development of our city. But by trying to rush through a land sale for a mediocre water park without any community consultation, city hall has demonstrated that it just doesn't understand that intrinsic value.

In the wake of the water park belly flop, some city councillors have suggested Parcel Four could be thrown open for proposals, or that it should be sold to the FNPP. The problem with the former is that the same people responsible for the water park plan would decide what gets built. The problem with the latter is that it restricts the FNPP to looking at commercial developments so that it can recover its investment.

Instead, the city should remove itself from the process, and delegate all decision making to the Forks North Portage Partnership. It has proven in the past — through the careful development of the original Forks site, the hotel, the skate park, and more — that it understands how to engage the public and craft a proper plan. So 'fork' it over city hall.

Bus driver hailed as hero after controlling vehicle despite deadly wound

Chinese are hailing a bus driver who maintained control of his vehicle and ensured passengers' safety despite being struck by a chunk of iron that smashed through his windscreen while driving a bus near Beijing last week.

Wu Bin ultimately died of his injuries from Tuesday's freak accident, but not before braking, shifting gears and telling passengers not to wander onto the highway. His hometown of Hangzhou in eastern China has praised him as a hero and a role model.

Dramatic security camera footage broadcast Sunday on state television showed the object hitting Wu and his calm handling of the situation, despite being in obvious pain. Wu died Friday.

China has a history of praising acts of selflessness and courage to inspire responsibility in an increasingly competitive and sometimes callous society.

Oak Bank School pays it forward with 2,000 books after fire at Sagkeeng school

News Worth Sharing

Media will always have to report on the tough stuff. But we know that Canada is full of compassionate individuals, inspiring projects and stories worth celebrating. Here's just one.

Just one month after a fire spread through the Anicinabe Community School in Sagkeeng First Nation, students from a school in Oak Bank have shown their support.

The Oak Bank Elementary School had expected to donate about 500 books to the community school for 262 children from nursery school to Grade 3, but "in true Oak Bank fashion" came out in full force to donate almost 2,000 books.

The Oak Bank School is no stranger to fire.

In 1998, a fire claimed the west wing of their school.

Teachers have used that fateful event, and the ensuing goodwill that helped Oak Bank back on its feet, as a chance to teach students about social justice and empathy.

Snow White is the fairest of them all

Snow White & the Huntsman triumphed at the weekend box office. According to studio estimates Sunday, Universal Pictures' action yarn inspired by the fairy-tale princess debuted strongly at No. 1 with $56.3 million domestically. That's about $20 million higher than industry expectations. Snow White bumped Sony's Men in Black 3 from the top spot and into second place with $29.3 million. The Will Smith-Tommy Lee Jones sequel raised its total to $112.3 million after two weekends. Disney's superhero sensation The Avengers remained strong at No. 3 with $20.3 million, lifting its domestic total to $552.7 million.

Corey Hart's comeback a point of 'pride' for singer

Remix. Sunglasses at Night singer gets inspired to remake Truth Will Set You Free and bring its gay-positive message to the forefront

When Corey Hart included Truth Will Set You Free on his 1988 album Young Man Running, few among his legions of fans likely realized that the song was intended as a gay-positive anthem of affirmation for anyone struggling with his or her sexuality.

For one thing, the Montreal-born pop star wanted it that way. He was intentionally cryptic in the lyrics of the soaring tune, couching the true meaning of its be-yourself-at-all-costs mantra in subtext. The reason for the secrecy? Hart wanted to protect the close friend who had inspired the song, someone whose sexuality was a source of self-doubt and pain.

Now, Hart is issuing a dance floor-friendly remix of the tune, one which swaps the contemplative soft-rock of the original for an icy club groove and pulls those themes that coursed under the original's surface to the fore with new lyrics inspired, in part, by the 1998 murder of gay university student Matthew Shepard.

And to make positively sure those newly prominent themes resonate, Hart — who willingly receded from the musical spotlight to raise his children — will mark his first Canadian performance in a decade during Toronto's Pride festival.

"The gay aspect of this song was an important message that I wanted to send out there, especially being a straight man

If you go...

- The performance. Hart's Toronto show will take place June 30 — a free, open-air festival gig with the capacity to squeeze in 3,000 fans.

— I thought it was important to say this," he added. "It was important for me to be at a gay pride event and to go out there and sing the song, and spread the message of the song."

But it certainly wasn't a typical journey to get to this point.

The idea to re-record his 24-year-old song began with an unsolicited email request from a DJ whom Hart had never heard of.

1Love — whose real name is Paul Todd — wasn't writing in regard to either Sunglasses at Night or Never Surrender. Hart was intrigued, but it wasn't until he got to know Todd that he became persuaded to revisit the track.

Todd was just a music lover from Kingston, Ont., who was driving a cab at night to support his four kids.

Even though Hart was initially a "little put off" with Todd's first attempt at tackling a new version of the song, their personalities clicked.

By then, Hart had made up his mind to issue his first single in 12 years. Hart felt that Todd's early remix didn't have enough musicality to it, so he sent it to musician friends in Toronto and Montreal who added textures until the gleaming song found its pulse. Perhaps more important to Hart was the opportunity to re-record his vocals with new lyrics.

"I felt (it was) necessary to take the song much further than I had in 1988," Hart said.

William Shatner's weird world

Where no man has gone before. The 81-year-old icon gears up for another season of Weird or What?

From hosting the Junos in Ottawa to a multi-city U.S. tour of his Broadway show, William Shatner has been a man on the move for much of 2012 with a red-hot career that leaves little time for respite.

The week ahead is no exception as the Canadian pop culture icon prepares to head to Johannesburg for work with plans to eke out a few days for a photographic safari in the interior.

"I'm really excited by that. What I'm not excited about is a 22-hour airplane ride," the affable actor said candidly from his home in Los Angeles.

Despite his stacked schedule, the tireless 81-year-old continues to have a hands-on role with William Shatner's Weird or What? which is back for a third season beginning today at 10 p.m. ET on History Television. Shatner is host and executive producer of the series which explores true-life tales of the unknown and unexplainable, and features first-person accounts, expert commentary and reconstructions of the mysterious events in question.

In addition to narrating Weird or What? and delivering tongue-in-cheek quips onscreen, Shatner said he's active behind the scenes, consulting on stories and looking at scripts.

"It's more than just a couple of weeks of working on the show as the wrap-around. I'm intimately involved in the show, so there's no telling how much time that takes," he said.

Tonight's spine-tingling episode chronicles real-life accounts of human encounters with beastly creatures, including a New Jersey mother and son seeing the fabled Jersey Devil.

The "massively interesting" stories featured on Weird or What? all pique the interest of the inquisitive Shatner. Even as he peruses scripts, Shatner said he tries to seek out his own explanations for unusual happenings. He's also fascinated by the notions of multiple and alternate universes and the bending of time.

"Since we know nothing and everything is mysterious, the explanations for mysterious events assume an even more unknown quantity," said Shatner. "So we try to explain scientifically what may have happened in a mysterious event, but we can't be sure that that is the explanation."

OUR TAKE ON THE WORLD OF CELEBRITIES

The Word

We're finally worried about Charlie Sheen

THE WORD

Monica Weymouth
scene@metronews.ca

Brooke Mueller has landed herself back in rehab, but the situation might not be as bad as it seems.

Despite a history of drug abuse and saying "I do" to Charlie Sheen, the sometimes-actress' lawyers say the stay is a perfectly routine "pre-planned event," and that reports of a crack-cocaine binge with her ex-husband are entirely false.

For his part, Sheen doesn't know who he agrees with just yet — but that doesn't mean he won't attempt to talk about it.

Here's his statement on the matter to TMZ: "I can't speak to anyone's opinion or judgement. I was there, they were not, their tepid hearsay is a baseless static drone."

"A mantra, their theme. I refuse to be held hostage by their 'constitutional' privilege, to judge those who can and who do. nabobs. CS"

It took a while, but we are finally confused by the choices of Charlie Sheen. This man is a professional Drunk-est Guy Last Night, and yet this is the statement he releases?

Charlie, this is familiar territory: sleep in, take a shower, throw on a little bronzer and surface in gym clothes with a leafy bag from Whole Foods. This showing-up-to-breakfast-in-sunglasses stuff is for amateurs.

Has he learned nothing?

When asked who will play him in the inevitable biopic, Bill Clinton generously settled on George Clooney during an interview on Piers Morgan Tonight.

Now, as for Hillary? He'd like to cast Meryl Streep.

We think this was a compliment, but Bill, trust us: assuming you're still around for a next time, the answer you are looking for here is "Angelina Jolie, Charlize Theron or a young Heidi Klum."

Justin Bieber

Justin Bieber takes a backstage tumble

Justin Bieber is recovering from a possible concussion and a bruised ego after walking into a glass wall backstage at a Paris concert, according to TMZ. The singer returned to the stage to finish his set, but he reportedly lost consciousness briefly backstage after the show. Local doctors diagnosed him with a concussion. Bieber is taking it well, though, posting on Twitter, "Just smacked my head and needed some water. All good. I'm Canadian. We are tough." This isn't the first time Bieber has been fooled by the translucent nature of glass walls and doors. Online video clips show him walking into the glass partition of a revolving door in 2010 and a glass wall at a radio station office later that year.

Amy Winehouse's property up for sale

Amy Winehouse's family is taking another step in moving on after their daughter's death 10 months ago, putting the singer's London home up for sale, according to Reuters. "The Winehouse's have decided to put the house on the market, with great regret," a family spokesperson says. "Amy loved that house, but none of the family felt it appropriate that they should live in it and it was not practical to keep it empty while paying the costs of its upkeep." The home, which was previously intended to be the headquarters for the Amy Winehouse Foundation, is being offered for $4.2 million.

Got a big family? Here's how to save time and money

Have a daughter? Don't cut her bangs. Once you start cutting bangs, you're a slave to trimming them.

Don't buy bikes with white wheels. If you get your princess a pink bike with white wheels, little brother may be reluctant to take it on when sister outgrows it. Sacrifice glitter and ribbons for a good hand-me-down situation.

Have your babies close in age. This year, I had three kids on the SAME hockey team. This means only one rink at one time.

Don't cheap out on big-ticket items. If you buy your first kid a cheap bike, it's not going to get through the rest of your clan. You're better off buying top-quality baby products and sports equipment. JULIE COLE/YUMMYMUMMYCLUB.CA

Father's Day gift: The 52 Reasons I Love You Jar

Looking for the perfect Father's Day gift? The 52 Reasons I Love You Jar is a great idea! This is a three-ingredient activity that kids can make as a gift for Dad — that keeps giving.

Grab a jar, paper and crayons. Have your child write out 52 hand-written notes using the prompt "I love you because ..." (I love you because you take me to soccer, I love you because you tell fart jokes, I love you because you read to me ...)

Drop them into the jar. Dad can choose one note each week for the next year. This activity gives kids an opportunity to think about why Dad is special. It's a great way for kids to practice handwriting and brainstorming. And it's free! CAROLINE FERNANDEZ/YUMMYMUMMYCLUB.CA

When yes is better than no

First response. Saying no comes naturally when children ask for anything outside of the master plan, but it can stifle development

JENNIFER KOLARI

"Mommy, let's have a picnic lunch under the dining room table.

"Why would we do that when we have a table?" I said without even looking up from my emails and piled-up paperwork.

"Why not?" asked my daughter.

I tore myself away from the screen to look at her. She was flushed with excitement. Even the ends of her hair seemed to be electrified as she bounced from foot to foot, imploring me with her cockeyed smile

"Sure, let's do it!" I said.

She was surprised by my answer. We ate, played games and giggled, and I was a much happier woman than I would have been had I remained hunched over my computer.

"Thank you," I said to my daughter.

"For what, Mommy?"

"For taking me on a picnic," I said. "Well, you should thank yourself, too. You're the one who said yes."

Parents usually go to "no" as a first response when their children ask for anything outside the master plan.

"No, I don't want you to build a cushion fort in the living room right now; it makes a huge mess."

I've done it. But if a child wants to build a fort or engage in any other activity that promises a transient mess, why not let him or her?

Your little one has an idea and exploring ideas is such an integral ingredient of our kids' development. How else are they going to figure out what works or how to solve their own problems?

Saying "no" comes naturally because we think doing so is without consequences. We're wrong. Not only do we limit our children's personal possibilities, we also compromise many opportunities to bond with them and to show them a different side of ourselves.

So, next time, consider going straight to "yes." I guarantee the experience will be as satisfying and memorable for you as if you had planned the whole thing yourself.

Weird baby names get even weirder

We're talking weird — from the future troublemakers Capone and Juvenal, to Mother Nature's son, Cougar, Fox and Bear. Not to mention the badasses, Tank and Notorious, Marvellous, Famous and Tupac.

For cultural trends, it's Mad Men all the way, with six Draper kids released into the world. Homage to the late Dirty Dancer, Swayze. And Elvis is back (if he ever went away), as are the corresponding names Graceland, Presley and Memphis.

The Royal wedding appears to have left its mark, as the absurdly conjoined Princewilliam, Princemichael and Sircharles will attest.

While the calendar has historically provided baby name inspiration (April, June), it saw some new twists, including Tomorrow, Evening and Future.

Oh, and intoxicants featured, too: Tequila, Chardonnay and (I kid you not) Abeer. JULIE GREEN/YUMMYMUMMYCLUB.CA

Caesarean births linked to child obesity

New research published in the Archives of Disease in Childhood claims that C-sections may double the risk of childhood obesity. Big news, considering that around one in three babies are born this way in Canada.

The study followed 1,255 mothers and babies between 1999 and 2002. The babies were weighed at birth, six months and age three. Around one in four were C-sections, and those babies tended to weigh more than those from vaginal births.

According to researchers, there is the "difference in the composition of gut bacteria acquired at birth between the two delivery methods." Apparently babies born by C-section have more Firmicutes bacteria and fewer Bacteroides bacteria in their guts. (Obese people have higher levels of Firmicutes bacteria.) It is believed that gut bacteria influences insulin resistance, inflammation and fat deposits.

Another good reason to avoid elective, non-emergency Caesarean births.

Hearty halibut is a perfect match for spring veggies

Roasted Halibut with Quinoa and Vegetables

This recipe serves six. NEWS CANADA

1. Place quinoa in a rice cooker with 750 ml (3 cups) of water. Cook until tender and fluff with a fork.

2. Meanwhile, bring a large pot of salted water to a boil and prepare a bowl with ice water. Blanch asparagus, snap peas and sweet peas by placing them into the boiling water for about 1 minute for each batch. Strain and remove to ice water for another minute to stop the cooking.

Drain and set aside.

3. Remove quinoa from rice cooker, place in a large bowl and mix with oil, chives, tarragon and lemon rind. Season with salt and pepper.

4. Season halibut with salt and pepper and place on a parchment-lined baking sheet. Place a sprig of dill on each piece of fish; layer each with 3 to 4 lemon slices and top with 5 ml (1 tsp) of the butter. Splash with white wine and bake, uncovered, in centre of 190 C (375 F) oven for about 7 minutes.

5. Brown remaining butter in a pan over medium-high heat. Add lemon juice and blanched vegetables and toss quickly. Season to taste and add toasted almonds to vegetables. To serve, arrange quinoa and fish on a plate and spoon vegetables around and over the fish.

Ingredients

Raising the roof: What green top would best suit your household?

QUEEN OF GREEN
Lindsay Coulter
green@metronews.ca

What are some green roofing options?
Shannon of Calgary

First, dispose of the old roofing materials. I'm guessing you have asphalt shingles.

In Canada, about 1.25 million tonnes of asphalt-based roofing materials are discarded each year. But asphalt shingles are recyclable. Before you hire a roofing contractor, ask if your old shingles will be recycled. For smaller do-it-yourself jobs, look for a construction waste recycling depot near you.

Benefits of metal roofs:

- Recyclable and often made with recycled content (steel and aluminum)

- Highly durable, up to 100 years but the screws will only last 25 years
- Can be installed over asphalt shingles
- Reflect more energy = lower cooling costs in summer
- Ideal for water collection; i.e., rain barrels

Avoid copper roofs, which take a lot of energy to make and create pollution. Also avoid zinc to treat rust; instead, request a powder coating. Finally, ensure your aluminum roof has a baked-on resin that meets national drinking water standards to avoid contaminating runoff.

Benefits of recycled rubber roofs:

- They're often made from old tires!
- Very durable (50 years)

The biggest problems are off-gassing, contamination of rainwater and heat absorption from the black colour (increasing your cooling bill in summer).

Benefits of green roofs (plants growing over a waterproof membrane):

- Lower cooling costs by 50 to 90 per cent
- Minimize rainwater runoff
- Act as a carbon sink
- Reduce the urban heat island effect (cities regularly reach higher temperatures than the surrounding landscape because of the extra solar energy they absorb)

Today, this is cost prohibitive for most homeowners — starting at $18 a square foot. However, they are becoming more popular on commercial buildings with flat roofs due to their insulating properties, durability, stormwater mitigation and more.

"I'm not worried. I'm just hoping that I can wake up tomorrow morning knowing that I'm in the quarter-finals. Forget this match today. Take the best out of it, which is that I'm proud I've been fighting, coming from two sets down."

Top-seeded Novak Djokovic, who survived an early scare for his third-career comeback from two sets down to post a fourth-round victory over 22nd-seeded Andreas Seppi of Italy, 4-6, 6-7 (5), 6-3, 7-5, 6-3. Across the way from Djokovic, at Court Suzanne Lenglen, Victoria Azarenka got off to a similarly bad start, except she never recovered — and wound up with a 6-2, 7-6 (4) loss to No. 15 Dominika Cibulkova. David Goffin, in the draw as a "lucky loser" after falling in qualifying, found himself with a one-set lead against none other than his childhood favourite, Roger Federer, before falling 5-7, 7-5, 6-2, 6-4. At the end, the 21-year-old, 109th-ranked Goffin got a hug from the 16-time major champion that left him smiling.

No job guarantees at Bombers camp

CFL. Tough competition at several positions as training camp opens at Canad Inns Stadium

Paul LaPolice's message to the Winnipeg Blue Bombers as training camp opens is pretty simple — no one's job is guaranteed.

"Just because they started last year doesn't mean they start this year," said Winnipeg's coach Sunday, as perhaps 8,000 fans ignored glowering skies to watch the first practice in Canad Inns Stadium.

"Coaches have carte blanche to say this is the change we have to make, 'We have to put this guy at this spot

Quoted

"The best players will play. There is no entitlement here." Blue Bombers coach Paul LaPolice to figure it out.' And that message has been told to the players."

There is tough competition for several positions including punter, where import Eric Wilbur is getting a look after Mike Renaud struggled last season.

"Everybody is fighting for a spot on this team," said Renaud.

His play in 2011 didn't match his solid 2010 season, when he was named to the East Division all-star team.

"He was inconsistent at times," said LaPolice.

"I had long talks with him about it. 'If you're the guy who was here two years ago, you're going to do very well."

For his part, Renaud seems anxious to bury a season that saw him benched and replaced by Jamie Boreham.

"Last year's last year. We're starting over," said Renaud.

In the end, the Bombers were no happier with Boreham, who struggled mightily to win decent field position in last year's Grey Cup. They released him in December.

As a Canadian, Renaud has a distinct advantage because of the import-non-import ratio. But LaPolice says that should give no one too much comfort.

Tailback Chris Garrett is entering training camp as a starter but knows he has to prove himself to hold that spot, particularly with newcomers like Chad Simpson burning up the field.

"Right now I'm the starter, good feeling but nothing's etched in stone," said Garrett.

LaPolice said they knew Simpson was fast from watching his highlights. He might see action as a kick returner although right now the coach is keeping is options open.

"All those tailbacks are fast but they're also good running backs within the box. It will be a good evaluation."

A couple of players who needn't worry too much about their jobs had yet to arrive in camp Sunday — defensive backs Jonathan Hefney and Jovon Johnson.

Woods matches Nicklaus for wins

Tiger Woods picked the right place to match Jack Nicklaus for career PGA Tour wins, and with a shot that even left Nicklaus amazed.

Two shots behind with three holes to play, and his ball in an impossible spot behind the 16th green, Woods holed a flop shot from 50 feet away that turned bogey into birdie and sent him on his way to a stunning comeback Sunday in the Memorial.

It was his fifth win at Muirfield Village, and the 73rd of his PGA Tour career to match Nicklaus at No. 2 all-time. Sam Snead won a record 82 times.

Fish hold on in thriller over Cats

For awhile it appeared as if Yurendell de Caster's grand slam home run would stand up.

But that was before the shenanigans in the ninth inning.

Sunday afternoon in front of 6,149 fans at Shaw Park, the Winnipeg Goldeyes beat the Gary SouthShore RailCats 6-5 in a thriller.

It wasn't a thriller until the RailCats do what they often do late in a ball game — scored three runs in the ninth without a ball out of the infield.

The Goldeyes scored four in the fifth on a grand slam home run by de Caster to jump out to a 4-0 lead.

At 6-2 heading into the ninth, it looked like the Fish had it locked up.

With closer Nick Carr throwing 90-mile-per-hour heaters, the RailCats never hit a ball out of the infield, but they scored three runs. David Cooper grounded to third to open the inning, but with one out, Adam Klein walked and stole second. Mike Massaro then beat out an infield single to put runners on the corners.

Brian Kolb then hit a ground ball to third base that looked foul to Goldeyes third baseman Amos Ramon, who eventually threw to first base, over the head of de Caster, and that scored Klein to make the score 6-3.

Two more runs scored on infield hits to make it 6-5.

However, with the bases loaded and two out, Carr struck out Craig Maddox for the final out and the Goldeyes locked down the win for Ace Walker who threw six solid innings and deserved his second victory of the season.

Walker also struck out three RailCats to tie Rick Forney for the Goldeyes all-time career strikeout lead with 314. With the win, the Goldeyes improved to 11-4 on the season, won five of six on the home stand and won the series with Gary.

Horoscope

♈ Aries | March 21 - April 20.

Someone is about to find out just how much you dislike being taken advantage of.

♉ Taurus | April 21 - May 21.

Trust your own abilities, and trust that fate is still on your side.

♊ Gemini | May 22 - June 20.

Someone you live or work with seems to be under the impression that each time they do something wrong you will forgive them. It may have been true in the past but it's not true today.

♋ Cancer | June 21 - July 22.

Keep tasks to a minimum today and think before you act. Or don't act at all.

♌ Leo | July 23 - Aug. 22. Before you make that purchase ask yourself if you really need it.

♍ Virgo | Aug. 23 - Sept. 22.

The planets suggest that little things will be more important than big things today, so focus on the kind of details that others tend to overlook. On the home front especially your keen eye will spot danger quickly.

♎ Libra | Sept. 23 - Oct. 22.

Everyone makes mistakes — yes, even a Libra — so put it down to experience and get on with your life.

♏ Scorpio | Oct. 23 - Nov.

21. How do you turn good ideas into cash? That is the problem you will need to resolve over the next few days, but you must not be rash about it.

♐ Sagittarius | Nov. 22 - Dec.

21. Yes, it's true, someone has taken advantage of you, but seeking revenge isn't the answer. Today's eclipse in your sign urges you to forgive those who have done you wrong. But don't forget or they may do it again.

♑ Capricorn | Dec. 22 - Jan

20. The message of the stars for Capricorn this week is that not even someone as driven as you can change the world on your own

♒ Aquarius | Jan. 21 - Feb 18.

You must stick with the task or project you are working on, no matter how slowly it may be progressing.

♓ Pisces | Feb. 19 - March 20.

Although you are under a lot of pressure at the moment you will find ways to deal with it. Pisces is an adaptable sign, so if one way does not seem to be working for you just try something else.
